

1092 - Are the five daily prayers mentioned in the Qur'aan?

the question

The Holy Qur'an, Surah 30: Al Rum 17 "SO (GIVE) GLORY TO ALLAH, WHEN YE REACH EVENTIDE AND WHEN YE RISE IN THE MORNING;" 18 "YEA, TO HIM BE PRAISE, IN THE HEAVENS AND ON EARTH; AND IN THE LATE AFTERNOON AND WHEN THE DAY BEGINS TO DECLINE." These verses only mention four prayers, but yet Muslims pray five times a day (plus Sunnah). Why does it not state the fifth prayer? PS. I'am a practicing Muslim (Inshallah) and I'am in no way trying to prove the Qur'an wrong.

Detailed answer

Praise be to Allah.

In the Tafseer of this aayah, it is reported that Ibn 'Abbaas (may Allaah be pleased with him) said: "The five daily prayers are (mentioned) in the Qur'aan." He was asked, "Where?" He said, "Allaah says (interpretation of the meaning): 'So glorify Allaah when you come up to the evening' is maghrib and 'isha'; 'and when you enter the morning' is fajr; 'in the afternoon' is 'asr; and 'the time when the day begins to decline' is zuhr." Other mufasssireen, such as al-Dahhaak and Sa'eed ibn Jubayr said the same thing.

Some of the mufasssireen said that these aayat mention only four of the prayers; 'isha' is not mentioned here, but it is mentioned in Soorat Hood, where Allaah says (interpretation of the meaning): "... and in some hours of the night..." [Hood 11:114]

Most of the mufasssireen are of the first opinion. Al-Nahhaas (may Allaah have mercy on him) said: "The scholars of Tafseer say that the aayah (interpretation of the meaning): 'So glorify Allaah when you come up to the evening and when you enter the morning...' [al-Room 30:17] refers to the prayers."

Imaam al-Jassaas (may Allaah have mercy on him) said: "Allaah says (interpretation of the meaning): ‘... The prayer is enjoined on the believers at fixed times [mawqootan].’ [al-Nisa’ 4:103]. It was reported that ‘Abd-Allaah ibn Mas’ood said: ‘[Mawqootan means that] Salaah has an appointed time just as Hajj does.’ It was reported that Ibn ‘Abbaas, Mujaahid and ‘Atiyah said [that mawqootan means] ‘It is obligatory’... The word ‘mawqootan’ means that it is obligatory at certain times. The times are referred to in general terms in this aayah and are explained elsewhere in the Book, without defining precisely when those times start and end – that was explained in detail by the Messenger of Allaah (peace and blessings of Allaah be upon him). What Allaah mentioned about the times of the prayers in His Book is (interpretation of the meaning): “Perform al-Salaah from mid-day till the darkness of the night and recite the Qur’aan in the early dawn...” [al-Isra’ 17:78]. Mujaahid reported from Ibn ‘Abbaas: “‘Mid-day’ means when the sun has passed its zenith for salaah al-zuhr, and ‘the darkness of the night’ means the beginning of the night, for salaah al-maghrib.” It was also reported from Ibn ‘Umar that mid-day meant the zenith... Allaah says (interpretation of the meaning): “And perform al-salaah at the two ends of the day and in some parts of the night” [Hood 11:114]. ‘Amr reported from al-Hasan that ‘the two ends of the day’ means fajr at the first end and zuhr and ‘asr at the other; ‘some parts of the night’ means maghrib and ‘isha’. So according to this opinion the aayah refers to all five prayers.... Layth reported from al-Hakam from Abu ‘Ayyaad that Ibn ‘Abbaas said: “This aayah mentions all five prayers together. ‘So glorify Allaah when you come up to the evening’ refers to maghrib and ‘isha’, ‘and when you enter the morning’ refers to fajr, ‘in the afternoon’ is ‘asr; and ‘the time when the day begins to decline’ is zuhr.” Something similar was also reported from al-Hasan.

Abu Razeen reported from Ibn ‘Abbaas: “ ‘...and glorify the praises of your Lord before the rising of the sun and before (its) setting’ [Qaaf 50:39 – interpretation of the meaning] refers to the prescribed prayers. ‘... and glorify the praises of your Lord before the rising of the sun, and before its setting, and during some of the hours of the night, and at the sides of the day, that you may become pleased with the reward which Allaah shall give you.’ [Ta-Ha 20:130 – interpretation of the meaning] This aayah also includes the times of the prayers. All of these aayaat mention the times of the prayers.”

Ahkaam al-Qur’aan by al-Jassaas, Baab Mawaaqeet al-Salaah.

What you should also know is that the Qur'aan does not contain details of all the rules. The Qur'aan mentions many rules, but it also tells us that the Sunnah is a source of evidence in which many rules are mentioned in detail that are not mentioned in the Qur'aan. Allaah says (interpretation of the meanings):

“... and We have also sent down to you (O Muhammad) the reminder and the advice (the Qur'aan), that you may explain clearly to men what is sent down to them and that they may give thought.”

[al-Nahl 16:44]

“... and whatsoever the Messenger gives you, take it...” [al-Hashr 59:7]

The Prophet (peace and blessings of Allaah be upon him) said: “I have been given the Qur'aan and something like it with it...” (Reported by Imaam Ahmad, 16546; this is a saheeh hadeeth). Whether the rules were narrated in the Qur'aan or in the Sunnah, all of it is true and right, and all of it has one source, which is the wahy or revelation from the Lord of the Worlds.
